25X1

Director, Office of Assessment and Evaluation

SUBJECT:

1985 Intelligence Capabilities Study

1. As you know, subject study has now been disseminated to the respective IC Staff Offices, inter alia, for their review and action as appropriate.

2. Obviously, the top-level requirements contained in the capabilities study will have to be translated into specific requirements and/or initiatives. As a result of this process, my staff is ready to provide your office, as well as the other ICS offices, any analytical support required to address the actionable items surfaced from the capabilities study. Additionally, we are also prepared to provide your office any assistance required in developing program and budget guidance to the Program Managers, vis-a-vis the capabilities study.

3. To facilitate the interaction between our respective staffs, provided below is a list of the OA&E staff officers and their principal functional areas:
